An 80-year-old man was sitting on the sofa in his house along with his 45-year-old highly educated son. Suddenly a crow ( 乌鸦 ) perched on the tree near their window. The father asked his son, "What is this?" The son replied, "It is a crow." After a few minutes, the father asked his son the second time, "What is this?" The son said, "Father, I have just now told you 'It's a crow'." After a little while, the old father again asked his son the third time, "What is this?" "It's a crow, a crow, a crow." said the son loudly. A little after, the father again asked his son the fourth time, "What is this?" This time the son shouted at his father, "Why do you keep asking me the same question again and again? 'IT IS A CROW'. Are you not able to understand this?"

A little later the father went to his room and came back with an old diary, which he had kept since his son was born. On opening a page, he asked his son to read that page. When the son read it, the following words were written in the diary:

"Today my little son aged three was sitting with me on the sofa, when a crow was there on the window. My son asked me 23 times what it was, and I replied to him all 23 times that it was a crow. I hugged him lovingly each time he asked me the same question again and again for 23 times. I did not at all feel annoyed; I rather felt affection for my innocent child."

C

A 12-year-old with end stage cancer, the child's parents had recently moved her from the hospital to her home in the suburbs of Los Angeles. Some days later the girl's breath quickened, and her father phoned the family's hospice nurse.

The nurse knew the visit would require more than four hours of her time: a two-hour drive in each direction, plus her time with the girl. "Why don't we connect over FaceTime?" she asked. The father agreed, and they connected.

The nurse asked the father to move his daughter gently to her side, then to her back, to lift the child's shirt. The nurse would ask: what do you see, what concerns you, and the father would explain. In this fashion the pair examined the girl — the nurse on her computer, the father his iPad. Together they decided that the nurse's presence was not necessary, that the child had more time.

Later, the father reported feeling comforted by the nurse. He appreciated her availability, the fact that she could see what he saw, and their ability to discuss it in real time.

Telemedicine has become a trend in America. Some hospitals have gone so far as to specially design telemedicine clinics. The room is staged like an office but with better lighting. There's a nice desk for the clinician to sit behind, a computer situated stage left, and books in the background. A physician taking a video call from home might wear a pair of headphones, equipped with a mic — to ensure whatever the patient says isn't broadcast to anyone off-camera.

However, there is something more than the technology bit. According to David, the head of the telemedicine pilot the girl's family had been part of, there are some people who are great in person and you put them on camera they're a dead fish. "Some physicians are camera shy, and thus usually seem ignorant of patients' feelings. For others, the physical isolation can actually help them be more empathetic." He adds.

"My experience is that, once you get past some initial hurdles, you can maintain an intimate, immediate connection with patients that in some cases may be more useful than even in-person interactions." David says.

( 1 ) ( 2分 ) In the case mentioned by the writer, we learn that _____ .

- A. a physician was arranged after the nurse knew it would take a long time
- B. the nurse successfully diagnosed the girl with an Ipad over FaceTime

- A. Better lights are provided for a comfortable environment.
- B. Headphones with mics are equipped to protect privacy of patients.
- C. Professional books are in place for immediate consultation.
- D. The room with a computer is situated in the doctor's home.

( 3 ) ( 2分 ) What challenges may clinicians face in telemedicine?

- A. They are afraid of being isolated from patients.
- B. They could not examine the patients carefully.
- C. They are required to deal with in-person interactions.

D. They may not feel quite themselves in front of a camera.

( 4 ) ( 2分 ) What does the underlined word "empathetic" in paragraph 6 probably mean?

A. understanding    B. independent    C. indifferent    D. confident
